July 22, 2017 Usability Test for www.cherylhughey.com

Testing Script that was posted to Facebook:

Some of you may be aware that I was selected to study User Experience at a local organization. (I am using my background in psychology and sociology to make computers and mobile devices more human friendly.) As part of my own learning curve, I am experimenting with website design and would like you to help by being a participant in a small usability test.

Instructions: Please visit www.cherylhughey.com. Find the search bar and look up the word "rainforest." (If successful, you should see "search results for: rainforest" and other information on the page. Please see the example below.) Once you have tried it, leave a comment on my Facebook wall below to tell me about your visit. Were you able to complete the task and was it easy to do?

Thank you!

/* Comment: As guidance, a preview of the www.cherylhughey.com page was posted after the script here. See the supplemental screenshot picture file for more information: <https://cherylhughey.files.wordpress.com/2017/07/usertest3.png> */

Some of the survey comments received:

"... Twas quite easy"

"Good work!"

"Done ... It was real quick"

"Did it. It worked just fine."

"done ... enjoyed the photo gallery."
